SUIT TO ORDER
$15.00

Nearly Every Man Will Be Interested In This

Because it offers an opportunity to fill out a much needed want in the clothes closets of possibly nine men out of every ten who will read. It conveys an opportunity to get an extra pair of trousers FREE, to go with that extra coat and vest you probably have hanging up at present.

I have quite a large stock of single lengths of Trousers at present on my tables. In fact, a greater quantity of them than I will require to meet the demand I expect to have this season for individual trousers orders. I have considered the possibility of reducing this Trousers stock by normal methods, and after thinking over its sale possibilities from every angle I am convinced that it will be more advantageous to me to use the surplus as a lever to get more Suit and Topcoat business. So I am going to present customers who will buy now an extra Minstrels by Women a Big Success—Fred Hildreth Injured—Seven Granges Represented at Wednesday Evening's Meeting.

Warren Averill is improving gradually. He is now able to sit up two hours daily.

H. Beecher Brown of Plainfield and two sons and Horace Brown of Worcester spent the week end with E. E. Brown, and attended the Marvellous Miranda's Minstrels.

A Pronounced Success.

Miranda's Minstrels were an unequalled success, playing to a packed house. The two numbers by the end men, Bones and Tangle, Mrs. Frank Hildreth and Miss Virginia Sharpe, were especially good. The duet by Mrs. Gallup and Mrs. Botham, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Gallup, won a hearty encore. The quartette was particularly enjoyed, and the different voices came out finely. Mrs. Phoebe A. Sharpe showed to great advantage as second bass. The men all acknowledged that they are outclassed, and feel that it will be perfectly safe to leave future minstrel shows to the ladies.

Miss Isabel Rogers has returned to her home in Pomfret.

Eyes Injured by Acid.

Fred Hildreth sustained a distressing accident at the High School recently. While at work in the chemical laboratory a bottle broke, letting some acid into his eyes. It was at first feared that he might lose his sight, but fortunately he is recovering and able to be around again, but will be obliged to use glasses for some time.

Seven Granges Represented.

Senexet Grange furnished the lecturer's program for Wolf Den Grange Wednesday evening, April 23. They furnished a lambable farce, Mr. Spriggins' Day of Rest, which was acted in the acceptable manner which has made Senexet noted in past years.

Henry Wells as Spriggins made a hit. Refreshments and dancing followed. Seven granges were represented.

New Block.

W. P. Babcock is putting up a large business block just east of the one occupied by Dearnley & Clark.

OLD WAGON SHOP.

Built Over Fifty Years Ago—One Time Club Room of Flat Rock Neighborhood.

If the old shop which Harry E. Greene is putting up in his yard could talk it could tell an interesting story of local history. It was built more than fifty years ago and stood just west of the little pond on the old Spaulding farm (now known as the George Barber farm) at Flat Rock.

Alfred Spaulding's wagon shop was the club room of the neighborhood, where men met to talk politics, town and national affairs, and plans for farm work. Farmers from Griswold, Sterling and Plainfield brought their wagons with them (both new and old) and every man came the next time he had a job to be done.

Some 38 years ago Mr. Spaulding moved the shop to his own farm, and business continued as long as he was able to work. For some 15 years the old shop has been closed and deserted, and of the men who gathered there only a few remain.
